"You don't always know whether what you are about to say is intelligent, but if you are talking about love, then you know it is intelligent."

RAEL, February 61 a.H.

The Professor Of Happiness

When we are around this uncommon character, very quickly one is moved by his sheer charisma.

His glance, His posture, His attitude, His benevolence. In short - His inner beauty makes Him a professor of happiness, a poet with the eloquence and the language of beauty.

In an instant, He explains a complicated scientific concept to us with simple words and few images...

A boat, sails, wind, sea and a captain of consciousness... And here we are guided to travel harmoniously over all the tumultuous oceans of life.

His teaching consists of three words: goodness, beauty and righteousness.

We all aspire to happiness... to discover it, to preserve it deep down inside, He teaches us through positivity and optimism to look inside ourselves while familiarizing us with meditation, prayer and to be aware of the infinite which surrounds us.

Our greatest beauty product is happiness... to lean towards beauty, truth, what's right, will undoubtedly open oneself to what is essential and turn our mind towards good.

A human being is really changed when he does good around him, feeling alive, as well as becoming the person beside him or the person in front... to constantly get closer to compassion and to move away from identification and indifference forever.

This is an homage to the Prophet by Kimbangu Mundele

The Words of our Beloved Prophet

RAEL was at a monthly gathering in Switzerland last week. Here are a few excerpts of what he said, taken from notes.

Thank you Elohim for having created us with consciousness, capable of love - the most beautiful fruit of consciousness, and capable of humor, the second most beautiful fruit of consciousness.

With love and humor, we can do anything. The greatest geniuses had both. Due to love, they created the washing machine which made it possible for women not to have their hands in water for many hours; all technologies were created out of love.

Cinema and the Internet which connects humans, is full of humor and laughter as well. You created us in your image, able to laugh. We must remember you creating us in a laboratory in great bursts of laughter. Nature, life - your creation, is full of your humor and your love.

You created us in your image, able to give love without the expectation of receiving.

If we had the choice between spending our life giving while hoping to receive, (even going as far as pretending to love in order to receive love) or to spend a lifetime giving without ever thinking of receiving, then you would have to choose to give without thinking of receiving.

To give without ever thinking of being loved - "Giving fulfills me and is sufficient". A life of great happiness is a life spent giving to others. The gift of love makes a life blossom.

We were created in your image to give. When one gives it is a Fountain of Youth.

When one gives and one receives in return, it is super, but it should not be sought.

When a gift is hoped for, one is always disappointed; but when somebody offers it to you, without you expecting it, it is the most beautiful possible gift because it was unexpected.

Thank you for this most beautiful gift that you have given us, this capacity to give without expectation

"All change is immediate. If you feel good after these words and you say to yourselves I will always be like that, it is possible. It is possible also that that lasts only a few minutes, a few hours.... You feel it, it is true that it's good to give.... Then you forget... a boyfriend who does not react like you would like, and you forget. You no longer hear what you're saying, what you were saying - a problem of concentration. If that happens, poke each other, teach yourselves mutually, titillate yourselves: "Aha! You are not in the state in which you wanted to be yesterday any more". Dare to do it.

You were born to give, what are you waiting for?

If one waits for nothing, one is always happy.

If one has everything, one has nothing.

If one has nothing, one has everything.

Don't wait for a "thanks" when you give, otherwise it is trading. I give you money, you give me a house, it is trading, not love. If you love and you give without expectation, not even a glance, then it is love. It would be good to do an exercise to give something to somebody who has his back turned away, glancing elsewhere and to see the result, to feel...

That will make you grow if you do that, especially if you do it in your daily life.

Sometimes I do it in Japan in the parks, I walk with all the delicacies that the Japanese Raeliens offered me and I find sleeping vagrants to give to so that they do not know where it came from when they awaken. All our life must be like that.

We do very much as Raelians. Sometimes, some of you may think that we are not numerous and feel discouraged, but what we achieve is fantastic. We are known in 150 countries in the world. I travel everywhere and am recognized everywhere.

We are respected - people question us because we change things on earth. Not only with the cloning, but also the Hospital of Pleasure and Pierre Bolduc who asked for my authorization not to be National Guide of Canada to devote himself to its construction, and also to make it so that soon excision does not exist any more in Africa while following my ideas and recommendations; Jeean in Africa as well. Artists in Las Vegas which also join us for these Clitoraid actions. The stem cells that BB prepares and that will fix a lot of our diseases.

Our "There is No God" actions and all the atheists who support and join us.... The number of actions which we conduct and report is extraordinary.

But what is life? Life is a preparation for eternal life. If one loves without expectation, if one lives without expectations, then one can live a long time. A life of waiting is a life of frustration, no one wants to be frustrated for eternity. If one is permanently waiting for happiness to come from outside, then it is not necessary to be recreated. If we practice living happily, with love and by giving, then it is super. But one should not live while waiting to be recreated because it would still be a trade. If you give, hoping for eternity, that will not work. It's not tallied like that. I do not even hope to be eternal, I do not want it, but if I receive it, I will be happy, but I will never do enough to deserve it.

One cannot rise up if one is looking down. The elevation of consciousness is like the ascension of an infinite mountain.

Question: Besides meeting with Elohim, what is the most beautiful moment that you have lived in your life?

Prophet: It is the present moment...

Question: Yes, ok, but in the past, what was the moment that you lived and liked the most...?

Prophet: It is the present moment...

Now is the most beautiful moment of your life. As soon as you say the word 'now', it's already the past. We are processors of the future, making it the past. The future is not eaten yet. When we eat it, it is now. Once it is eaten, it's the past, it becomes shit.

There are some people who are happy to be in shit all the time. Others live in the future all the time and wonder what they will eat tomorrow. What is on the plate now is the best. It's the same with your life. The moment that you live is magic and unique. It should be savored. As soon as you say something, it has already passed.

The moment should be seized because the moment is always passing, elusive. But one can stop the consumption of the future. It is like a candle is the future. The present is a flame which shines, which burns and heats us, in the same way that our present illuminates us.

The most beautiful moment is the present moment. The most beautiful food is that which is on the plate now.

To love the past is to regret.
To love the future, is a dream which may never happen.
To love the present, yes!!!!

You should not dream to 'give' some day and never do so because you are waiting to find the person who deserves to receive your love. Do not judge. Give to those who do not deserve. Give just to give. It is the magic of the moment. To give immediately as if this moment were the last.

Brel said "I'm coming, but did I ever do anything else other than coming?"

Our days are numbered.

He also talks about: "the clock in the living room waiting for you."

If we had only one breath, the last one... it should be just enough to say "I love you".

You have to live the moment with a panoramic vision of the past and the possible futures while being only in the moment. That is total consciousness. When one is only in the past or in the future, then one does not live. But when one is in the present with these panoramic views of the past and the possible futures, then one is like Jonathan the Seagull who chose to fly in spite of how others felt about it and who is followed by those who want to fly as well.

We are the sect of the seagulls. All those who walk in their muck do not like us, but there are others who want to learn how to fly with us. Once we've had a taste of flight, nothing can stop us.

More Q&A with our Beloved Prophet

Humility

Question: Can one be proud and humble?

Absolutely, in humility there is pride. The more humble you are, the more you are conscious of being dust and therefore, with justice and truth, you are capable of being anything and you can be proud of it.

Whoever is not humble cannot be all. He is only a puppet in a universe, animated by his ego. If one's ego is completely destroyed, then one wants everything for others and one can be proud of it. One can put their head to the ground and feel the dirt which composes them, the dirt from where one comes and to where one will return and be proud of being conscious of it.

Conflict

The aggravated person is always wrong, even if that comes from being annoyed by another. We should not let anyone bring us down. In a conflict, there are always two. The speed with which one solves conflicts is a sign of intelligence. If it takes you a second, it's ok. But it is still better to solve conflicts before they arise. If they arise, it is too late. It is necessary to solve conflicts by anticipating them so that they are not born, and with laughter. Humor deflates conflicts.

About Bush wanting to keep America safe

Democrats from the US House of Representatives have opposed President Bush's plan to send more troops to Iraq. In a recent speech US President George W Bush had told his Democratic opponents that he welcomes debate on the Iraq War saying that they share a common goal that is to keep America safe.

RAEL made the following statement regarding his speech:

So Bush wants to keep America safe? Illegal invasions and occupations of other countries do exactly the opposite. Now, thanks to Bush, the USA has a very strict border control and Home Security apparatus... do they doubt so much the efficiency of this system which was used to reduce dramatically the freedom of US citizens to the point where they also need to illegally invade and occupy other countries ?

All of this started with the attacks of September 11. It's always necessary to remember clearly what happened on this dramatic day in 2001 to fully understand the problem: a handful of terrorists used cutters to take control of airliners and crash them into the twin towers which then collapsed. That was not a foreign country attack by a hostile army. Just less than 10 people with cutters... And for that, reacting only with pure negative emotions out of vengeance and absolutely no rationality, George Bush decided to use the huge American military power to attack and illegally occupy Afghanistan, whose army and government was never involved in the twin towers' attack, then Iraq, lying by claiming that this country had "weapons of mass destruction".

All of this to allegedly "make America and the middle east safer"...

You don't need to be a rocket scientist to see that the Middle East not only isn't safer than before the US invasions, but a much more dangerous place. Both in Afghanistan and Iraq, security is at an all time low.

Bush wanted to "pacify the whole Middle East and solve forever the Palestinian problem"... the result of his criminal policies is that now not only are the two invaded countries, Afghanistan and Iraq, more dangerous than ever, not only is Palestine more dangerous than ever, but new countries which were starting to enjoy peace after long deadly civil wars like Lebanon and Somalia are also becoming more dangerous than ever. And that's just the beginning...

America had never ever been hated by so many people on earth. More than 80 countries on earth are now considered dangerous for American tourists... while before Bush, American were admired and welcomed in almost all the world.

Had George Bush opted for a non-emotional, non-violent reaction to September 11, using diplomacy instead of military power. Reacting to September 11 which was only a crime committed by individuals as if it was a military attack by a foreign country was THE mistake committed knowingly by a criminal. George Bush, who just wanted to become the superhero changing the world forever...

September 11 was an attack committed by less than 10 criminals equipped with cutters...it was not a military problem but a police problem. After a criminal bombed a building a few years before in Oklahoma City, the US government did not invade any country but gave the police and judicial system the authority to solve the problem, find the criminal and judge him. It should have been the same after September 11.

Even if the handful of criminals involved had connections in foreign countries, it was just a matter of police and justice, using Interpol, economic sanctions and other non-violent actions to catch the criminals. But Bush opted for violence, his megalomaniac ego wishing to be remembered as a "super hero fighting for the Axis of Good versus the Axis of Evil" and even claiming that "god was talking to him" and inventing this stupid concept of "War on Terror"...as if "terror" was an army...There is no such thing. It's pure invention and a lie to play on the public's negative emotions and justify criminal policies.

Now, what is the result of this paranoid delirium? Did this policy make the world a safer place with less people willing to become terrorists?

It is not even necessary to answer to these questions; the facts speak by themselves...

Everyday hundreds of Muslims in Middle Eastern countries are killed by American soldiers, thousands are humiliated by the same soldiers, and millions in other Muslim countries are humiliated by what happens to the people of the illegally occupied countries without talking of the concentration camp of Guantanamo.

Not only Iraq and Afghanistan are becoming the new Vietnam, but they are the place where more and more people are willing one day to hurt America. The people killed, maimed or humiliated daily by American occupiers, will forever hate America and will try to have revenge.

Middle Eastern people have a very special sense of honor and family. A population killing their daughters just because they have kissed a non-Muslim guy, performing what is called "honor killing" doesn't give the same meaning to honor and revenge as Western people. It can survive centuries and pass on from generation to generation. You can see it between Shiites and Sunnis... brothers in Islam but still enemies...

And that's what America had become for them thanks to George Bush's policy...all these people who lost a member of their families because of American invasion, have been maimed or tortured or imprisoned, or have been humiliated in any way directly or indirectly will hate America forever and look for revenge. It means that even if the criminal invasion and occupation of these countries stop, the police control of American borders will remain very tight trying to avoid revenge acts of terrorists willing to pay back, for example, the loss of a brother or father in the hands of American soldiers...

If the War on Terror never existed, the war of individual terrorists will take a very long time to end. All that is needed is an individual motivated by revenge and hatred, taking an airplane ticket with a tourist visa and looking for a way to harm America... and that's impossible to avoid even with the tightest border controls.

We just have to hope that no more US presidents will use these crimes, which are a matter of police, to justify illegal invasions and illegal occupations of other countries creating more hatred in a vicious circle of revenge and vendettas.

The only way to save the world is through non-violence. As the Bible says: "the one who makes a living by the sword will die by the sword"... This planet needs more Gandhis and no more Bushes...And it will take them a very long time to heal the wounds created by Bush.

We also have to hope that before his mandate ends, he doesn't make things worse by invading Iran using one more lie about Iran's nuclear capabilities.

...His crazy Christian fundamentalist supporters and advisors are pushing for it hoping that it will create a nuclear conflict and that this will trigger Armageddon and the "return of Jesus" while crazy Muslim fundamentalist in Iran hope for the same thing believing that this will bring the end of the world and that the Meddhi, the equivalent of a messiah for them, will appear to force the whole world to become Muslim...

Wow... we really need more psychiatrists checking the mental health of presidential candidates before they postulate.

The frightening thing is that this attack of Iran may already be in preparation, as the increase in the number of American soldiers in Iraq has already commenced under the pretext of solving the "insurgency problem", more US ships are moving toward the Persian gulf and top former US generals are publicly warning Bush that attacking Iran would be a "terrible mistake"...

Use of hyperactivity drugs soars

Ritalin is a mild stimulant used to treat ADHD and its use has soared worldwide, according to US researchers. Between 1993 and 2003, prescriptions of ADHD medications, such as Ritalin, almost tripled and the global spending on ADHD drugs increased nine-fold, with 83% occurring in the US, a study in Health Affairs reported.

The Prophet RAEL made the following statement:

This is a terrible trend to "normalize" children which is killing the potential creativity of many new geniuses. Humanity needs more than ever "abnormal" children, revolted, revolutionary, contesting authority, creative, dreamers, etc... with such normalizing medication, maybe Mozart, Einstein and many others geniuses would have been "normalized" and their creativity extinguished forever... Geniuses are never "normal" ...that's why they are geniuses... you can never have extraordinary creativity without extraordinary behaviors.

Genetically Modified Foods

Rael supports the right for GM food companies to make their plants sterile

One of the arguments of anti-GM fanatics is that Genetic Use Restriction Technology or GURTS prevents "poor farmers from saving and re-planting harvested seed"... This wonderful technology is the absolute right for GM companies spending millions of dollars in research to create new species to protect their products from being pirated and used illegally by criminal stealing the fruits of their patented work.

"Poor farmers" can still buy regular seeds and use it forever if they like. GM seeds are not made for them but mainly for big corporate farmers. What is funny is that the fanatic anti-GM people call this great patented protection technology "terminator", a great word to scare uninformed people. What is also funny is that the same anti-GM people also scare people by saying that these GM plants can invade the wild world and destroy or contaminate "normal" plants... it's precisely the advantage of Genetic Use Restriction Technology or GURTS, making GM plants sterile, that makes it impossible to escape or "contaminate" the wild world... Hypocrisy at its worst...

Study Shows Positive Impact Of Biotech Crops

A new study published in AgBioForum, a peer reviewed journal on economics and biotechnology, done by Graham Brookes and Peter Barfoot, two UK-based economists has quantified the cumulative economic and environmental impacts of biotech crops grown during the past decade (1996-2005). They said biotech crops have contributed to significant environmental benefits from the reduction in overall usage of pesticides. They also noted a significant reduction in the amount of greenhouse gas emissions from biotech crop production.

They also reported that farmers who planted biotech crops realized significant economic gains compared to farmers who planted non-biotech crops.

A key finding of the study revealed that farmers used almost half a billion pounds (224 m kg.) less pesticides with genetically modified (GM) crops since 1996, a reduction of seven percent. The global "environmental impact" of pesticide use has also been reduced by over 15 percent due to the planting of biotech crops.

At the same time, biotech crops made a significant contribution to reducing greenhouse gas emissions from agricultural practices by nine billion kg of carbon dioxide. "This is the equivalent of removing almost four million cars from the road for one year," the authors pointed out.

GM crops have also facilitated the use of reduced tillage or no tillage farming systems, which results in more plant residue being stored, or sequestered, in the soil. This carbon sequestration saved the equivalent of nine billion kilograms of carbon dioxide emission 2005, the study said.

Economically, the report confirms that farmers earned higher incomes in every country where biotech crops are grown. In 2005, farmers who planted biotech crops earned over five billion in incremental income compared with growers who planted non biotech crops.

The study also noted that since 1996, global farm income from biotech crops increased by a cumulative total of $27 billion from a combination of higher productivity and reduced costs.

Our Beloved Prophet made the following comment after reading this study:

This is one of the biggest news items of the year. The big question is why is it that all mainstream media doesn't talk about it, especially in anti-GM countries like France, and especially at this time when it is fashionable to talk about how to reduce alleged global warming... It looks like GM crop farming is the most carbon dioxide reducing technology...

GM companies should in fact get the Richard Branson money award! This news is a real big problem for anti-GM militants as GM crops prove to be very environmentally friendly...much more than normal agriculture as it was in fact forecasted...

China Brain Drain

A recent article on the China Daily said that many overseas Chinese students choose to stay abroad instead of coming back home after their study and that China suffers from the world's most severe brain drain.

About two-thirds of Chinese who have studied abroad since the 1980s have chosen not to come back, and this ratio, in a new report compiled by the Academy of Social Sciences in Beijing, is reportedly the highest in the world. Since 2002, more than 100,000 students have gone abroad to study each year, but the number of returnees has been only 20,000 to 30,000, the report estimates.

Our Beloved Prophet made the following comments:

This is the competition between states that I announced 25 years ago. More and more people are choosing in which country to live instead of staying where they were born and that's great. The states will be in competition about taxes, freedom, quality of life etc... Nobody belongs to a nation in the new planetary village. French people move to Switzerland or Belgium to pay less taxes, Swedish move to Monaco, Chinese stay in the US after graduating from universities to enjoy more freedom and more money, rich people from all around the world settle in Dubai which is totally income tax free etc... This planet is yours, choose where to live! By doing so people will force the states to lower or suppress taxes to attract new educated immigrants, as they did in Ireland 20 years ago to attract companies... Nowadays the real wealth is no longer "companies" or factories but brains...

Rael Nominates Eyal Sivan as Honorary Guide Of The Raelian Movement

Eyal Sivan director of the Movie "Route 181: Fragments of a Journey in Israel-Palestine" has been given the title of Honorary Guide of the Raelian Movement by RAEL this week.

His movie which presents oral history from a wide variety of people who live along the 1947 partition line, has captured the fragments of a land shattered by politics, history, and colonialism. He portrayed the divide of the physical landscape and that of the humans that inhabit it, especially the deep racial hatred amongst Israelis towards Palestinians, which doesn't appear the other way around. None of the Palestinians featured in the film share the racism of many of the Israelis interviewed. Palestinian after Palestinian recalls a time when Jews, Christians, and Muslims lived together harmoniously, religion being a non-issue.

Eyal Sivan clearly shows his preference for Israelis and Palestinians to live together rather than apart. But he realizes that those Jewish Israelis who place a purely Jewish state over coexistence with the Palestinians are an obstacle to this solution, and the film does a great job bringing those attitudes to the forefront.

After Tali Fahima, the Israeli peace activist who has spent two years in jail in her country for aiding Zakaria Zubeidi, one of the most wanted gunmen in the West Bank, it is another Israeli activist helping Palestinians who receives the title of Guide of Humanity.

RAEL, founder and leader of the Raelian Movement, has been calling for the rise of an Israeli Gandhi. A leader who would show absolute non-violence is needed so much in that part of the globe, a part where those who created us, the Elohim, have asked to be welcomed in an Embassy within a demilitarized zone. A first step before building any such premises is certainly to stop the local conflicts and have Jews and Palestinians live harmoniously together again.

IsRaeli Raelian Movement to open Rabbinical School

(press release sent in Israel)

The isRaeli Raelian Movement about to open a Rabbinic center to welcome all ex-orthodox Jews who have become secular and atheists

The isRaeli Raelian Movement has decided to open a Rabbinical school center where Raelian Guides will welcome all young ex-orthodox Jews who are thrown out from their homes or who are leaving them, after they have found the truth about our origins, thanks to our lectures.

In this school center, they will have the possibility to study and understand the real meaning of the Tanah (Bible) which never makes any reference to the ELOHIM as a single immaterial god, but to "those who come from the skies" as the term Elohim should literally be translated.

Through citations from the Tanah, the Zohar and other Hebrew texts, our lectures easily demonstrate that the ELOHIM mentioned in all Hebrew scriptures are EXTRA TERRESTRIALS who came to our planet thousands of years ago and created all life on earth as it was explained to Mashiah RAEL in his encounter with our Creators 32 years ago.

Leon Mellul Grand Rabbi of the Israeli Raelian Movement declared: "This explanation of our origin is much more in agreement with the scientific knowledge we have about life and the isRaeli young generation not only embraces the modern and revolutionary philosophy proposed by the Raelian Movement but they are also quite enthusiastic about its main goal which is to build an EMBASSY (the Third Temple) to welcome the scientists who created us in IsRael. They understand that the ONLY reason for the survival of the State of isRael is to welcome the Mashiah RAEL and help him build this EMBASSY. If isRael refuses, we will face once more a Diaspora and the end of the state of isRael."

Raelians in Israel are pleased to see more and more young ex-orthodox IsRaeli devoting time not only to study the new Bible but also to pave the way for Elohim's return to the promised land. The Raelian Rabbinic Center will provide them with help and support throughout their philosophical quest.

Sun Cult?

A recent article on the BBC was reporting about the fact that the oldest solar observatory in the Americas has been found, suggesting the existence of early, sophisticated Sun "cults", according to the scientists report in the prestigious journal Science.

Here is a comment from RAEL:

It is still the same colonialist mentality here: even modern archeologists are biased and call it a "cult" because it was the Incan religion, while they would not refer to Christians as a cult... double standard from euromorphist imperialists.

A real scientific mind should call them all "religions" or "cults" but not use different words. The sun religion was at least as beautiful as Christianity...

Our Beloved Prophet Sends His Support to:

n The Mayan leaders who have said they will perform a ceremony after US President George W Bush visits an ancient site during his trip to Guatemala. It will be a special cleansing ceremony to clear the bad energy left by his visit. J n President Lula of Brazil who accused families and the Church of hypocrisy concerning the use of condoms, considers it useless to ask young people to abstain from having sexual intercourse because "sex is something which is pleasing to almost everyone and is a necessity". This remark brought on criticism from Brazilian Catholic bishops who of course continue to deny the benefit of condoms and lead young people to disease and pregnancy which we all know about.

n Patrick Stuebing and Susan Karolewski in Germany, an unusual family as Patrick is Susan's brother and they are lovers. "Under Germany's criminal code, which dates back to 1871, it is a crime for close relatives to have sex and it's punishable by up to three years in prison. This law is out of date and it breaches the couple's civil rights," said Dr Wilhelm, their lawyer ... fully agreed. J They are adults and should be allowed to choose their lovers the way they want without anyone interfering.

n The leader of Falun Gong as about 40,000 Falun Gong practitioners who committed no crime have been secretly put to death in Chinese hospitals and their organs sold "on-demand," according to investigators who reported at a United States Congressional committee in Washington, DC last October. Also according to one source, nearly 85 percent of the organs being used in a large Tianjin city transplant center are going to people who reside outside of China....

n President of Rwanda, Paul Kagame who is planning to limit couples to no more than three children because of rising poverty in Africa's most densely populated country. The country has one of the world's highest birth rates. Some are keen to have children to replace the family members lost during the 1994 genocide. (Some 800,000 Tutsis and moderate Hutus were killed in the 100-day genocide.)

Our Beloved Prophet said it was a nice move although two children would have been better. He also congratulated him for choosing English as the third official language after the Kinyruanda and Swahili languages. We have to remember that Rwanda has been a Belgian colony and therefore was forced to use French then. Today, he and his ministers only use English during their official meetings.

n Mexican Pop singer Christian Chavez, who has been breaking the gay taboo, announcing his sexual preference while saying that he did not "want to keep on lying" about his life, after pictures emerged of him with a man apparently getting married in Canada. Christian Chavez's decision must have brought lots of hope in the Mexican gay community that is today far from being tolerated.

n Teapack Lead Singer Kobi Oz, who wrote the 'terror' song which represents Israel at the Eurovision Song Contest and is facing a ban for its strong stand. Kobi Oz said "We are not working to be nice to everyone. Real art provokes responses and provokes people into arguing."

Here are the offending lyrics... Let's hope they will be heard J

*The world is full of terror
If someone makes an error
He's gonna blow us up to biddy biddy kingdom come
There are some crazy rulers they hide and try to fool us*

*With demonic, technologic willingness to harm
They're gonna push the button push the button push the bu, push the bu, push the button*

*Everybody's suffering
The streets are filled with violence
How lucky we are
To have got this far*

*Without even getting injured
As this regime, so fanatical
Gets even more tactical*

*It's so tragic my eyes fill with tears
And I don't want to die
I want to see the flowers bloom
Don't want a go capoot ka boom*

*And I don't want to cry
I wanna have a lot of fun
Just sitting in the sun*

*Messages are exploding on me
Rockets are flying and landing on me
Police and thieves are chasing me
Jumping on me and pestering me*

Woe is me, woe is me, answer me oh living God

*This nightmare is too long
When I am barely living and everyone is aiming at me it is too early, perhaps, to sing that I have given you my life
Wha, Wha the police*

*Weeoo, weeoo a rescue team
Here it is in the semi-finals without salaam
Red is not only a colour, it's more like blood.*

n Sergeant Eric Alva who was one of the first Americans -- perhaps the first -- to be wounded in Iraq when he lost his leg to a land mine and who wants to use his place in history to win support for a proposed law to allow gays and lesbians to serve openly in the U.S. armed forces. He has announced his homosexuality at a news conference on Capitol Hill, where he called for the military's "Don't ask, don't tell" policy on gays in the service to be abandoned.

n Lt Ehren K Watada - First US Commissioned Officer to publicly refuse deployment to the Iraq War and occupation. n The Mau Mau warriors of Kenya who demand apologies from the British government for the atrocities committed in 1952 during the period of the state of emergency in Kenya.

"During the state of emergency of 1952, approximately 1065 Kenyans were executed and at least 160,000 others suspected of collaborating with the Mau Mau were placed in custody without the natural right to the suitable procedure in front of the law" announced the Mau Mau spokespeople. They add: "Other Kenyans were imprisoned in 'the Kikuyu Reserves' where the conditions were similar to those described in the concentration camps of the Nazi era. To add to these injustices which defined British policy, the Kenyans were victims of abrupt massacres, atrocious tortures, rapes, forced labor and expulsion" n Mr. Wouter Van Bellingen, a Belgian citizen, Flemish who is black and who bears a 100% Flemish name. Having been adopted very young, he speaks perfect Flemish, he made brilliant studies, he entered politics through a small leftist party, and after the last elections (he had much success with the foreign-born populations of "immigrants"), he obtained the position of alderman and civil servant of the state of the Commune of Sint-Niklaas, it is he, therefore, who must perform the weddings there. Since his appointment at the beginning of January, there was a whole series of refusals to be married by him and annulments of marriage because he is black!! Incredible but true!

"In the industrialized West, there evolved the prevailing Pseudo-religious dogma that human beings are at the centre of 'G-d's creation in the universe'. This dogma is the ideological motivation behind the on-going de-legitimization of the verifiable contact that people have had with Extraterrestrials (ETs). This apparent dogma has become the modern equivalent of the corresponding dogma, that "the world is flat", which Church and other elites centuries ago used to champion. In contrast, free of Western pseudo-religious based dogma, the Buddhist milieu of China, has freed their scientific community, with the support of government, and of community participation, to seek to explore UFO incidences and evidence of human contact with Extraterrestrials.

What is dogma?

'Dogma' is a system of obfuscations, propaganda and related ideology, which elites present as "truth", with the aim to maintain social control, and to expand their own hold on power. Other examples of current operating dogma include schemes of socialization that aim to convince people that "capitalism promotes freedom and democracy", that "privatization is a good thing", and that "economic protectionism is a bad thing".

A notable example of dogma, in the context of the so-called 'War on Terrorism', is that "the U.S. and its coalition partners are waging war in Iraq and Afghanistan not substantively for oil, but to promote human rights;" meanwhile well-documented human destruction, suffering and oppression worsen.

UFO research is an appreciated and duly recognized science in China.

Izvestia reports that China has a record number of UFO scientific and community-based organizations. There are many who even attempt to establish some sort of a contact with extraterrestrials. Their actions are protected by the National Society of the Extraterrestrial Studies, which was founded 25 years ago. This National Society is financed by the government.

Only professional scientists and engineers are allowed members in the Society. A person also required to have Ph.D. in science and have several published works about UFOs. About a third of all members of the society are also members of the Government of China.

The study and civic appreciation of Extraterrestrials are NOT systematically marginalized as the case in the industrialized West, which tries to use dogma to ridicule community and academic UFO research initiatives, and also the work of 'Exopolitics' groups.

Hundreds of scientists and engineers in China conduct thorough studies of apparent Extraterrestrial phenomenon.

Do Extraterrestrials live among humans?

Chinese scientists also say that aliens live among humans. This includes Sun Shili, a retired foreign ministry official who is now president of the Beijing UFO Research Society who also concludes that waixingren (extraterrestrials) are living among us.

Sun's first close encounter occurred in 1971, when he was sent to the remote countryside during the "cultural revolution" (1966-76) to perform the grueling task of rice planting. One day while toiling in the field, his attention was diverted to a bright object in the sky, which rose and fell repeatedly.

At first, Sun assumed the spectacle was some sort of Cold War intelligence monitoring device - a reasonable deduction considering the times - however years later, after reading foreign materials on UFO sightings, he knew he had experienced a close encounter.

And Sun is not the only expert in the country taking these sightings seriously. According to the highly-accredited Shen Shituan, an actual rocket scientist, president of Beijing Aerospace University and honorary director of the government-supported China UFO Research Association, every report of an alien encounter is worth investigating.

"Some of these sightings are real, some are fake and with others it's unclear," said Shen Shituan, a real rocket scientist, president of Beijing Aerospace University and honorary director of the China UFO Research Association. "All these phenomena are worth researching."

Research [ethically-based] into UFO's could help spur new forms of high-speed travel, unlimited sources of non-polluting and non-fossil fuel based energy and faster-growing crops, claims Sun Shili, president of a government-approved UFO Research Association (membership 50,000).

Shen Shituan does not readily dismiss UFO/ET reports like his counterparts in Western scientific communities, including the claims of one worker that aliens entered his Beijing home while his wife and child were present, and whisked him 265 kilometres east and back in only a few hours.

Over 400 members of Dalian's UFO Society have college degrees

In Dalian's UFO Society, 90 per cent of the 400 members have college degrees. "It's exciting for us to use science to decipher UFO sightings," said Zhou Xiaoqiang, secretary-general of the Beijing UFO Society.

While few Chinese claim to have managed to get quite as intimate with an extraterrestrial as Meng, a growing number of people in China believe in unidentified flying objects, or UFOs.

In fact, officially registered UFO associations in China have about 50,000 members, but some estimate the actual number of Chinese interested in the subject is probably in the tens of millions.

China has a bimonthly magazine -- circulation 400,000 - devoted to UFO research. The conservative state-run media also report UFO sightings on a regular basis, in contrast with Western government organization which, as a policy, denies verifiable human contact with Extraterrestrial. UFO buffs in China claim support from eminent scientists and liaisons with the secretive military, giving their work full scientific respectability.

"If something flies over [ET spacecraft], there's a very good reason for trying to understand why they're here, why they come to us, what is their relationship between us and them," he says.

Wong is the Chairman of Hong Kong's thriving UFO club -- exploring "unidentified flying objects" or, to the uninitiated, "flying saucers."

The club meets once a month to explore otherworldly topics like "E.T. Civilization" and alien philosophies.

"In order to understand UFO phenomena, we need to have a broad understanding of different disciplines," says Albert So, university professor and Hong Kong UFO club member, "including mathematics, physics, history, philosophy, even some sort of paranormal activities and all that."

Western science and pseudo-religions share corresponding systems of dogma, which seek to deny human contact with Extraterrestrials

In order to appreciate the systematized denial of human extraterrestrial contact and influences on Human civilization, which prevails in the West, one needs to appreciate that "official science" and "institutionalized religion" in the West are two different "heads" of the same body politic. Yes, "official science" in the West talks of "evolution", and Western institutionalized religion talks of "Creation". However, both groups have reached an apparent consensus to disregard clear evidence of verifiable contact and influences by Extraterrestrials on Human civilization. This joint denial is based upon a shared oppressive ideology, which seeks to repress critical human knowledge of cosmic associations and interactions with Off-world Human and other ET civilizations.

The very same apparent dogma shared between the Western scientific and institutionalized pseudo-religious Establishment, converges in their "community of interest" associated with their joint pursuit of venality and greed.

Examples of the sell-out of integrity, and associated buying into ideology and compromises to elite-induced peer pressure, is well documented in the Western scientific community, that operates in a crass materialistic societal milieu, which ignores basic principles of human rights and democracy. This very same shared dogma between Western scientific and institutionalized pseudo-religious Establishments, is also responsible for the path of oppression, genocide, wars, racisms, and environmental destruction which scientific "technologicalocrats" and self-professed "Christian" pseudo-religious missionaries and other apologists have furthered and have supported.

Jesus who supposedly inspired Western "Christian" religion, which is based on corroborations in the Bible, sought to support the need for wisdom, accompanied by peace and loving kindness. However, the actual historical practice of institutionalized Christianity, in contrast, has been to manipulate the masses into accepting bigoted views that are designed to complement the materialistic-centered objectives of an "organized power" elite.

Saying that "the Earth is round.. and revolved around the Sun" used to be an indictable offence with the prospective sentence of capital punishment, in Western "Christian" Society which regarded such talk to be the mutterings of seditious lunatics. "Official Science" and "institutionalized religion" in the West is not substantively inspired by the free-spirited pursuit of wisdom. Rather, these Establishment milieus in the West are guided by "elite ideologues" who in contrast with China, and for their own dogma-driven agenda, seek to delude the public on Extraterrestrial awareness, and other areas.

"Brazil, India and China are taking the lead on extraterrestrial awarness", Mihir Sen, from the India Daily reports. "They want to make sure the emerging new world understands that we have to coexist with our advanced extraterrestrial neighbours." The Indian Daily reports that Extraterrestrials will be forced to more publicly reveal themselves in order to try to avoid a planetary disaster which is projected to occur in 2012.

As human civilization is being destroyed under the hypocrisy which guides the Western Scientific and pseudo-religious Establishment, the timely needed enlightenment of human populations on a reported Extraterrestrial presence, could very well be led by China. The government of China notwithstanding accounts of human rights abuses, appears to have constructively prepared members of that society, on the kind of potentially vital awareness context, which Western governments continue to deny its own societal members.

Common Misconceptions About Global Warming

Source: <http://www.friendsofscience.org/index.php?ide=4>

MYTH 1: Global temperatures are rising at a rapid, unprecedented rate.

FACT: Accurate satellite, balloon and mountain top observations made over the last three decades have not shown any significant change in the long term rate of increase in global temperatures. Average ground station readings do show a mild warming of 0.6 to 0.8°C over the last 100 years, which is well within the natural variations recorded in the last millennium. The ground station network suffers from an uneven distribution across the globe; the stations are preferentially located in growing urban and industrial areas ("heat islands"), which show substantially higher readings than adjacent rural areas ("land use effects").

There has been no catastrophic warming recorded.

MYTH 2: The "hockey stick" graph proves that the earth has experienced a steady, very gradual temperature increase for 1000 years, then recently began a sudden increase.

FACT: Significant changes in climate have continually occurred throughout geologic time. For instance, the Medieval Warm Period, from around 1000 to 1200 AD (when the Vikings farmed on Greenland) was followed by a period known as the Little Ice Age. Since the end of the 17th Century the "average global temperature" has been rising at the low steady rate mentioned above; although from 1940 – 1970 temperatures actually dropped, leading to a Global Cooling scare.

The "hockey stick", a poster boy of both the UN's IPCC and Canada's Environment Department, ignores historical recorded climatic swings, and has now also been proven to be flawed and statistically unreliable as well. It is a computer construct and a faulty one at that.

MYTH 3: Human produced carbon dioxide has increased over the last 100 years, adding to the Greenhouse effect, thus warming the earth.

FACT: Carbon dioxide levels have indeed changed for various reasons, human and otherwise, just as they have throughout geologic time. Since the beginning of the industrial revolution, the CO₂ content of the atmosphere has increased. The RATE of growth during this period has also increased from about 0.2% per year to the present rate of about 0.4% per year, which growth rate has now been constant for the past 25 years. However, there is no proof that CO₂ is the main driver of global warming. As measured in ice cores dated over many thousands of years, CO₂ levels move up and down AFTER the temperature has done so, and thus are the RESULT OF, NOT THE CAUSE of warming. Geological field work in recent sediments confirms this causal relationship. There is solid evidence that, as temperatures move up and down naturally and cyclically through solar radiation, orbital and galactic influences, the warming surface layers of the earth's oceans expel more CO₂ as a result.

MYTH 4: CO₂ is the most common greenhouse gas.

FACT: Greenhouse gases form about 3 % of the atmosphere by volume. They consist of varying amounts, (about 97%) of water vapour and clouds, with the remainder being gases like CO₂, CH₄, Ozone and N₂O, of which carbon dioxide is the largest amount. Hence, CO₂ constitutes about 0.037% of the atmosphere. While the minor gases are more effective as "greenhouse agents" than water vapour and clouds, the latter are overwhelming the effect by their sheer volume and – in the end – are thought to be responsible for 60% of the "Greenhouse effect".

Those attributing climate change to CO₂ rarely mention this important fact.

MYTH 5: Computer models verify that CO₂ increases will cause significant global warming.

FACT: Computer models can be made to "verify" anything by changing some of the 5 million input parameters or any of a multitude of negative and positive feedbacks in the program used.. They do not "prove" anything. Also, computer models predicting global warming are incapable of properly including the effects of the sun, cosmic rays and the clouds. The sun is a major cause of temperature variation on the earth surface as its received radiation changes all the time, This happens largely in cyclical fashion. The number and the lengths in time of sunspots can be correlated very closely with average temperatures on earth, e.g. the Little Ice Age and the Medieval Warm Period. Varying intensity of solar heat radiation affects the surface temperature of the oceans and the currents. Warmer ocean water expels gases, some of which are CO₂. Solar radiation interferes with the cosmic ray flux, thus influencing the amount ionized nuclei which control cloud cover.

MYTH 6: The UN proved that man-made CO₂ causes global warming.

FACT: In a 1996 report by the UN on global warming, two statements were deleted from the final draft. Here they are:

1. "None of the studies cited above has shown clear evidence that we can attribute the observed climate changes to increases in greenhouse gases."
2. "No study to date has positively attributed all or part of the climate change to man-made causes"

To the present day there is still no scientific proof that man-made CO₂ causes significant global warming.

MYTH 7: CO₂ is a pollutant.

FACT: This is absolutely not true. Nitrogen forms 80% of our atmosphere. We could not live in 100% nitrogen either. Carbon dioxide is no more a pollutant than nitrogen is. CO₂ is essential to life on earth. It is necessary for plant growth since increased CO₂ intake as a result of increased atmospheric concentration causes many trees and other plants to grow more vigorously. Unfortunately, the Canadian Government has included CO₂ with a number of truly toxic and noxious substances listed by the Environmental Protection Act, only as their means to politically control it.

MYTH 8: Global warming will cause more storms and other weather extremes.

FACT: There is no scientific or statistical evidence whatsoever that supports such claims on a global scale. Regional variations may occur. Growing insurance and infrastructure repair costs, particularly in coastal areas, are sometimes claimed to be the result of increasing frequency and severity of storms, whereas in reality they are a function of increasing population density, escalating development value, and ever more media reporting.

MYTH 9: Receding glaciers and the calving of ice shelves are proof of global warming.

FACT: Glaciers have been receding and growing cyclically for hundreds of years. Recent glacier melting is a consequence of coming out of the very cool period of the Little Ice Age. Ice shelves have been breaking off for centuries. Scientists know of at least 33 periods of glaciers growing and then retreating. It's normal. Besides, glacier's health is dependent as much on precipitation as on temperature.

MYTH 10: The earth's poles are warming; polar ice caps are breaking up and melting and the sea level rising.

FACT: The earth is variable. The western Arctic may be getting somewhat warmer, due to unrelated cyclic events in the Pacific Ocean, but the Eastern Arctic and Greenland are getting colder. The small Palmer Peninsula of Antarctica is getting warmer, while the main Antarctic continent is actually cooling. Ice thicknesses are increasing both on Greenland and in Antarctica. Sea level monitoring in the Pacific (Tuvalu) and Indian Oceans (Maldives) has shown no sign of any sea level rise.
